The British singer Elton John held a preview and press conference on his Berkshire estate on Thursday (Sept. 10, 2015) to reveal the results of a collaboration between himself and the luxury crystal and glassmaker Lalique. Were unveiled the ELTON JOHN MUSIC IS LOVE FOR LALIQUE, a collection of seven exceptional crystal sculptures, four of which will be auctioned off and sold to raise critical funds to fight the global HIV/AIDS epidemic.

Three pieces from the MUSIC IS LOVE collection were available for purchase starting September 10, 2015, at LALIQUE boutiques nationwide and select retailers.

The masterpiece of the collection, the unique Angel Cire Perdue in clear and red crystal, together with three additional unique special editions of the standing Angel and Heart, will be auctioned off by Paddle8 at the Elton John AIDS Foundation's annual Academy Awards Viewing Party on February 28, 2016.

"This angel is a messenger of love and peace and harmony," said Elton John. "We live in a mad world at the moment and we want this piece to be a powerful reminder of the need for us to work together on global challenges, like Aids. If this beautiful angel can help people to think more about peace and love and harmonious living then we have done our job."
